Connecticut Food Ship for Belgium.
Over 1,500,000 women, children and other non-combatants are in the Belgian bread line. Unless America is to let starve those who have saved until now, more food must be supplied.

The Connecticut committee of the commission for relief in Belgium has set to work to send a "Connecticut food ship" jointly with the international commission, which has agreed to meet whatever is raised here dollar for dollar. All administration expenses are guaranteed; every cent contributed will reach Belgium in the shape of food.

The commission has offered to meet whatever we raise, dollar for dollar. Connecticut's half of this shipload will cost approximately $100,000, of which the greater part must be secured in local contributions. Every dollar contributed will actually reach Belgium in the shape of food, without any deductions.

Money, large and small, may be sent to Gen. William A. Aldrich, Norwich, or to Charles C. Russ, State Treasurer, care Hartford Trust company, Hartford.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

THE FASHION SHOP HELD OVER.
For the Entire Week at the Davis—All New Designs Today.

Another crowded house last night saw the big Fashion Shop now playing in the Davis theatre, the latest act ever seen here. The priceless silks and satins are draped upon the living perfect models in a most artistic manner by Mr. Hugh Jansen, the designer. With special scenery this act makes a beautiful impression from the rise of the curtain which represents the interior of a Parisian modiste. Here the models are brought in and draped with the most stunning combinations in less than two minutes by a most ingenious method, only the silks and other fineries and about a dozen being necessary.

An American Rube and his daughter, played by Ed. Carr and Miss Blanche Lytell furnish the comedy and their musical numbers and comedy are the funniest ever on any variety stage. This gorgeous affair will continue all this week but beginning today, and for the last half Mr. Jansen will change his modes and practically a new act will be presented. This act is not done in the larger cities where they play full week stands so Norwich will have an opportunity to see this act with twice the usual number of styles.

There is a well selected programme of photo plays with a two reel feature, "The Rube and his Daughter," with William S. Hart, the popular western actor. The eighth chapter of "The Diamond from the Sky," and a funny Keystone comedy, "The Chester Conklin completes the show."

An entire change of photo plays will be given tomorrow.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Girl Detective in "The Figure in Black," Two Reel Film Sensation.

Quite the most thrilling of the many episodes of the famous girl detective screen that have appeared on the screen at the Colonial theatre is the one for today entitled "The Figure in Black," telling of a wealthy guest who has had her jewels stolen by a black-robed figure. The girl detective and her assistant are put to the test and assume the characters respectively of maid and wealthy guest. The trap is laid for the return of the thief, and his hand is caught in a heavy spring trap cleverly hidden in a closet where the gems formerly reposed. He battles with the detective and her assistant, and finally manages to escape. Later a man with an injured hand is discovered on the top floor, and who you suppose it was? Well, the picture can tell best. Better see it, and judge if he was really guilty. No One Would Believe, a stirring Lubin drama featuring Leslie and big cast, tells of a girl's experiences which the newspapers refused to publish, thinking that nobody would believe them. "Idle Rich" is the snappy little comedy of the Edison company and Sweeney in Vaudeville will make you all hold on to your sides from laughter. "The Rube and his Daughter," and "The Figure in Black," and "The Chester Conklin" are the certain a funny one.

AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Today the Sign of the Cross will be shown for the last time here. It is a big spectacular feature and one that is well worth seeing, having the principal role the famous actor, William Farnum.

For many years the original play has fascinated the imagination and excited the emotions of audiences throughout the civilized world as has no other drama of its type, and it can be conservatively stated that with the added scope of the motion picture and the thrilling camera effects impossible in a stage version, the subject attracts renewed and increased appeal.

The seventh episode of "The Route," in two reels will be shown as well as the famous Paramount Travel Pictures.

For tomorrow and Saturday the Paramount feature will be "The Route," a corking western drama, which scenes make this subject particularly adaptable to the screen. Its farthest possibilities have been favorably taken advantage of in the present production. There are many unique effects in the screen adaptation that were impossible of reproduction on the stage, such as the actual construction of a railroad, the pitched battle between the cowpunchers and the railroad workers, which develops into a thrilling climax and many other stirring features.

The romance is derived from the love of the girl ranch owner, who refuses to permit the railroad company to lay their line across her ranch, and the young civil engineer assigned by the company to complete the railroad in spite of anything and everything. How his duty and love clash, how he is willing to sacrifice his love for the completion of the railroad, and how the girl, who has been assigned him, and how the stubborn opposition of the girl terminates in a whole-hearted desire to help him win, just on the eve of his own victory, are thrillingly depicted.

Harold Lockwood, Winifred Kingston, Donald Crisp and a company of popular photoplayers lend charm and sincerity to the various characterizations.

The Downfall of Potts, a Nestor comedy with Eddie Lyons and Steady Company, a Rex drama with Pauline Bush, will also be shown on those days.

Australia has nearly 300,000 acres of untouched forests.
